Big Traction Exhibit Begins at Hutchinson Next Monday.

A number of Topekans will attend the big traction plowing exhibit that will be held in Hutchinson July

The exhibition is expected to be the greatest affair of the kind held in the middle west. The demonstration work by the big machines will be the main feature, but a program of lectures by experts has been prepared, and there will be good band music.

The tractors typify strikingly the tremendous change that has taken place in farm methods. There has been a marked devel-pment in labor saving devices.

Among the Topekans who will go to the exhibit are E. W. Hankin and son Carl, who will go by motor car; G. C. Wheeler, F. B. Nichols, Marce Morrow, Charles C. Younggreen and

The passengers, including Baron Rosenkrantz, turned their glasses then upon the sailing ship, and tried to make out her name. Passengers said they could not see clearly the letters painted on her, but they were reasonably certain that it was the "Normanie" or a name similar to that. Maritime records here contain no Normanie in the list of sailing vessels. A near approach to this name, however, is that of the American bark Normany.

In this connection it was recalled here today that the Normany reached Liverpool on July 12, three days after the Orduna was attacked, at the end of a voyage from Gulfport, Miss. Upon her arrival at Liverpool, numbers of her crew said that the Normany was stopped by a German submarine sixty miles southwest of Tuskas Rock, off the southeast coast of Ireland, Friday night, July 9, and was forced to act as a shield for the submarine which hid herself from an approaching vessel which proved to be the Russian steamer, Leo.

The concert given by the remnants f Marshall's band at Gage park Friday evening, in honr of "the wives and widows" of present and absent mem-successful of the season and more than 1,000 people turned out. A basket supper preceded the con-cert and after the regular program the children present participated in a grand march. This was followed by a dance that was greatly enjoyed by all.

There were so many automobiles in the park that they all but blockaded the roads and paths. The band played a number of extra pieces and the audience kept up its call for more until at last Dr. Marshall raised the white flag and announced that the entertainment would bave to be terminated as the "Fourteen" had engagements to see the widows safely home before midnight.

stopped by a German submarine sixty miles southwest of Tuskas Rock, off the southeast coast of Ireland, Friday night, July 9, and was forced to act as a shield for the submarine which hid herself from an approaching vessel which proved to be the Russian steamer, Leo.

The submarine submerged, according to the Normany's crew, and proceeded around the Normany's bows. Ten minutes later the crew of the Normany saw the Leo blown up. This occurred, the Normany's crew said, on the night of July 9. The Orduna was attacked on the morning of July 9 and the scene of the attack was about twenty miles distant from the spot where the Leo was sunk.

The captain of the Normany, however, specifically denied the story told by the members of the crew. The bark was stopped by the submarine.

No "If" Any More

The Franklin 100-mile Low Gear Run last September stands as one of the greatest things that ever happened to change automobile sentiment. Thousands of people had said "if." They liked the idea of no water; they wanted simplicity, but "if" stood in the way. Since that run, the "if" business has become a dead issue. Thousands have bought their last water-cooled car.
